The opening of the bazaar of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital at the Raleigh yesterday afternoon marked the occasion as one of the most elaborate spring festivities of the year. Every booth reflected the beauty of the season because of the wealth of spring blossoms which shared popularity only with the fanciful electrical displays. Tables of useful articles, fancy articles, handmade handicrafts and parcel post packages attracted many purchasers.

One of the most artistic booths, conducted by Mrs. E. J. Stillwagen, offered tempting dainties of fancy cakes and pastries. Homemade cakes, candies and punch proved as popular as ever to those who visited the bazaar. During the afternoon the dancing, at which many well known patronesses were present, was noticeably brilliant, and especially interesting because of the dancing contest. On account of the continued nature of the various attractions of the bazaar a large number of persons remained for the dinner, which was served from 5 to 8 o'clock. The bazaar will close Wednesday night.

Col. and Mrs. George A. Armes have returned from New York, where they attended the art reception given by former Senator William A. Clark of Montana and Mrs. Clark. They were long guests at a reception given by Mrs. O. H. Belmont.
